OCPR

in Action

After the passage of Hurricane Maria, at the Comptroller's Office, we took the initiative to use all our resources to investigate the state in which the municipalities and government entities were and verify the needs of our citizens. We pursued this with the purpose of collaborating with the central government to address the crisis that our people still face. In addition, we want to obtain information that we can later use in our audit processes. For this, we created the Hurricane María Project.

OUR STAFF

After making sure that all our colleagues in the Office of the Comptroller were well, we decided to send them to all the municipalities and all the governmental entities that offer essential services to the People. In addition, many were volunteers in non-profit entities.

HOW DID WE START?

Our executive staff met several times, even before there was no electric power service, to coordinate the efforts and prepare a questionnaire that would serve as a guide to obtain information that would allow us to know the state of the Country. This questionnaire was distributed among our auditors and, in this way, we started with the Project.

We will go to each agency and municipality to see firsthand what is happening.

OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER
MESSAGE OF THE COMPTROLLER

The Hurricane María Project was created to have, firsthand, information about the conditions in which the Government was and how it handled this emergency. We wanted to make sure that the necessary services were offered to the citizens and that the aid had the widest possible reach and was both just and fair.

During our visits, we observed the need that our people is still experiencing, and we had the opportunity to help alleviate it, even if it was a little. I confess that sometimes I felt with my hands tied. We knew that Puerto Rico was going through so many situations, and that there were many people willing to help; but, because of reasons related to communication, bureaucracy, or not knowing how, those individuals could not bring their help to the People. This experience gave us the opportunity to be a means to channel aid and services, which filled us with great satisfaction, joy, and hope.

I thank all my colleagues in the Office of the Comptroller for all their effort and dedication.

WHAT DID WE DO?

We interviewed citizens, the mayors, and the top officials or authorized representatives at the agencies, departments, and public corporations.

MUNICIPALITIES

We made 468 visits to the donations collection centers and 344 to the debris consolidation centers.

In a visit made by the Comptroller to a collection center in a municipality, she was informed that they had to dispose of all the supplies, since, in that center, there were rodents due to the pet food that was stored there. The Comptroller gave instructions to the entire PROC staff to advise the mayors into not storing the pet food in the same place as the supplies.

We ensured that the distribution of supplies was just and fair.

We helped in the packaging and distribution of supplies.

We channeled psychological support through ASSMCA, orientation sessions by FEMA, and medical support, at the request of officials, employees, and citizens.

We provided advice on how to correctly document emergency hiring.

PUBLIC CORPORATIONS

Of the 80 public corporations we visited, 20 suffered significant damage and 51 prepared damage reports. Some of the damages were leaks, broken lamps, fallen ceiling panels, and severe structural damage such as broken electrical systems and walls, collapsed roofs, and destroyed offices.

COMMUNITY WORK

ELDERLY TASK FORCE

As part of our efforts to help in this emergency, the comptroller's office personnel joined the Elderly Task Force, which was created by the Federal and State Governments, and had a representation from the private sector. This group was dedicated to offering support to the elderly population. For this, necessity items were collected, such as water, canned food, and diapers for adults, among others. The group managed to visit 839 centers, for a total of 16,330 impacted people.

In addition, irregular situations were identified that required the intervention of the Department of Justice and that led to the filing of charges against owners of long-term care homes.

VOLUNTEERISM

Thirty of our colleagues were volunteers in municipalities, government entities, and non-profit entities. Some of these entities were United for Puerto Rico, Sister Isolina Ferrer Center, Municipality of Naranjito, and AEMEAD.

COLLABORATION WITH THE Department of Consumer Affairs

At the request of the Secretary of Consumer Affairs, we collaborated in the oversight of the orders to freeze the prices of basic necessities and the profit margin of gasoline, diesel, and liquefied gas. In this endeavor, we visited 365 gas stations and 248 stores, and we issued 58 infringement notices.
